

And So It Goes (with Everything but Love)

Written by Don Schlitz & Paul Overstreet

- 1. A mansion on a hill is a lovely sight to see,
But like any other house it's only temporary,
Home is any place you choose to hang your heart,
If there's no love inside, it'll soon fall apart.

chorus 1: Ashes to ashes, dust into dust,
Buildings will crumble, bridges will rust,
Mountains disappear, rivers all dry up,
And so it goes with everything but love,
So it goes with everything but love.

- 2. You can drive around in a long limousine,
If you don't know where you're going, it don't mean a thing,
He who'd walk a mile just to hold an empty hand,
Knows what it means to be a wealthy man.

chorus 2: Ashes to ashes, dust into dust,
Palaces will crumble, bridges will rust,
Mountains disappear, rivers all dry up,
And so it goes with everything but love,
So it goes with everything but love.

bridge: Worldly treasures all pass away,
There's just one thing that's here to stay.

chorus 3: Ashes to ashes, dust into dust,
Kingdoms will crumble, bridges will rust,
Mountains disappear, rivers all dry up,
And so it goes with everything but love,
So it goes with everything but love,
So it goes with everything but love.
